

THE DAILY STAR

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3

IN ORDER TO ACCOMMODATE EASTERN ADVERTISERS IN THE STAR, MR. E. DUNCAN SNIFFEN, NO. 71 ASTOR HOUSE, NEW YORK CITY, has been appointed our general and special agent for the Eastern States. This will be a branch office of the Star. Mr. Sniffen being authorized to make advertising contracts on our behalf, and receipt all collections thereon in our name.

COVINGTON.
No less than four hundred colored men are on the trail of Watson.

COUNTY COURT.—Regina Kuebbel was appointed guardian of Charles and Anna Kuebbel.

Constable Harry Riffe has returned from his visit to Big Bone much improved in health.

POLICE COURT.—Sarah Cooney, drunk, $4; Tom O'Brien, disorderly conduct, $4; Luke O'Brien, same, $4.

Miss Eva Gale and Miss Annie Moody, who have been visiting Mrs. Emma Bristol, have returned home.

A deaf and dumb negro boy was taken in by Officer Club O'Hara yesterday, and returned to his home in Cincinnati.

Dr. John W. Wiser was thrown from his buggy yesterday evening and received a cut over the eye and several bruises.

A telephone is in successful operation between the Hemingway Glass Works, this city, and their salesroom in Cincinnati.

The Fair of the Colored Agricultural, Mechanical and Live Stock Association takes place on the 10th, at the Star Baseball Grounds.

The celebrated trotting horses Post Boy and Dick Wilson came down on the Kentucky Central Railroad, en route for Chester Park.

Charles Morgan, having heard of the whereabouts of Watson, the man who murdered his wife last night, was armed with the necessary documents to arrest him and started on his trail.

Officer Mike Bolan, that statue of vigilance, arrested a man on the charge of stealing wearing apparel from the residence of Mr. J. Herold last night.

Miss Sallie Croninger, daughter of Connelman Croninger, was married last evening to Mr. Arnold Brown, of the Kentucky Central Freight Depot. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Geo. N. Bullington, of the Methodist Church.

CITY COUNCIL.—The report of the City Treasurer was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. The following was adopted:

Resolved, That the subject of the extension of the Kentucky Central Railroad through the city to or near the river front to some point conducive to the interests of the road and city be referred to the Special Committee of City Council and Citizens to whom was referred the matter of constructing a branch road from the Cincinnati Southern Railroad at Ludlow to and into the city of Covington, and that said Committee be hereby authorized and empowered to confer with the Board of Managers of the Kentucky Central Railroad and learn from them their views relative to the earliest time convenient to the respective parties, and that said Committee report the result of their labors to this Council on conclusion of the same.

NEWPORT.
Council meeting in Bellevue to-night. The Gorman Pioneer Association will meet at Red Men's Hall this evening.

The funeral of the venerable Mrs. Harriet Tuck took place yesterday.

The Murphy meetings will hereafter be held on Tuesday and Friday evenings of each week at J. Berry's Chapel.

In the Criminal Court, this morning, A. Gasdoff, was sentenced to one year in the Penitentiary for grand larceny.

Miss Louise Meyers, who was sent to the Lunatic Asylum about five months ago, returned last night perfectly cured of her disease.

The alarm from Box 6, at 12:30 today, was caused by a dog bite in the room of the two-story brick, on the southwest corner of Front and Monmouth streets. Loss trifling.

The many friends of Mr. George Miller, of this city, catcher of the disbanded Champion City, will be glad to know that he is engaged to catch for the Cincinnati for the rest of the season, along with Mitchell, his present partner.

Jacob Borne, a farmer down in Indiana, informs his brother Barney Borne, a constable in this city, of the destruction by lightning of his barn, containing grain, farming implements, etc., during a storm last week. He estimates his loss at $4,000.

Catherine Rabe, who was so terribly burned a week ago last Saturday, the particulars of which were given in the STAR at the time, died yesterday morning from the effects of the burns. Her funeral took place this morning from Corpus Christi Church.

The Grand Jury brought in the following indictments this morning: William Elliott, housebreaking and larceny; Henry Brown, same; A. Gasdoff and Andy Moran, grand larceny (the latter being too young to be sent to the Penitentiary, was allowed to plead guilty to petty larceny and was sentenced to three months in the County Jail; Jim Harris, of Dayton, was indicted for horse-stealing.

A little lad not more than five years old was brought to the Station-house shortly before 12 o'clock to-day for thieving. Marshall Luck, who brought him, said the child was caught at the same game. The accused was taken to the Marshal carried the little fellow off to be locked up was heard reading and brought tears to the eyes of a number of the crowd who witnessed it. The child's name was Eddy McGovern.

At the annual communication of Olive Branch Chapter No. 76, R. A. M., held last night, the following companies were elected to serve the following year: Thomas Dixon, H. P.; Daniel G. Brumbeck, King; I. A. Kelly, Secretary; H. J. Rugg, R. A. C.; J. F. Kinney, G. M. J. Van; R. P. G. M. 24 Vail; W. D. Smith, G. M. 1st Var.; J. N. Gault, Secretary; Thomas Fagin, Treasurer; J. Sealing, Guard; J. Rapp, Treasurer.

A meeting of the Committee on Course of Study and on Salaries and Appointments was held in the Kingdon-street building last evening. It was decided to request the Superintendent to ascertain, for the information of the Committee, what sum of money would be required by introducing the Eclectic Geography. A motion to grant the request of the teachers for shortening the afternoon session by half an hour, was carried. The Committee decided to place the additional 10 Intermediate Class in charge of the Principal of the Second District, Mr. Shepard.

The following tells its own tale:

TESTIMONIAL.—We, the undersigned Trustees of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, of Newport, Kentucky, having examined the books and other accounts kept by Rev. J. M. G. Moore, late pastor of this church, take pleasure in bearing testimony to the fact that we have found them entirely correct, and any saying or insinuation to the contrary we hereby qualify as false, unjust and base.

J. M. G. MOORE, PASTOR, MURTY SHEA, FREDERICK SHAUGHNESSY, J. M. HALL, RICHARD F. BARRETT, JOHN WALL, MARTIN F. BURTON.

LIXINGTON, KY.
The Colleges open next Monday.

The Franklin Fair was largely attended yesterday.

The Centennial Park was largely attended last night.

Mr. R. H. King has returned home much improved in health.

Mrs. Higgins' Kindergarten opened yesterday with about forty pupils.

The case of Adolph Lee Clark for shooting Calvin Taylor was continued.

The Kentucky Conference of the Methodist Church South meets in Winchester to-day.

Mr. Wm. Shields has opened a new book store on Short street, next door to the Ashland House.

Cash Spiro, formerly of Lell's confectionery, has opened a confectionery and eating-house under the Opera-house.

Died, in Booneville, Mo., on September 3, Noah D. Bell, formerly of this city. His remains will be brought to this city for interment.

Miss Lena Bane, of this city, has sold her house on Lime street, and will leave shortly for Flemingsburg, where she will make her future home.

The alarm of fire on Monday, about 1 o'clock, was caused by the burning of Mrs. J. W. Patterson's kitchen. The fire was extinguished before the engines arrived. The loss is small.

CALIFORNIA, OHIO.
Next Sunday the Champion No. 9 will take an excursion party from California, Ohio, to Lawrenceburg, Ind., and back. The object of the excursion is to give those connected with the Miami State Works an opportunity of seeing the city which they expect to make their future home. J. J. Sullivan, Democratic candidate for the Legislature, will accompany the excursion party. The Champion will start from California at 7 P. M., and will stop at Columbus, Dayton, K. V., Newport, Covington, and other points, returning to California at 7:30 P. M. Fare, 15 cents for the round trip.

HAMILTON.
The First Ward Park-enclosure is being treated to a new coat of paint.

Rev. D. R. Moore, of Venice, left yesterday for Princeton, N. J., where he will remain until April next.

An adjourned meeting of Council will be held to-morrow at 12 o'clock, when the bids on gas will be opened.

John Richardson, the depot agent at Seven Mile, while coupling cars yesterday, had one of his hands badly mashed.

The ladies of the Episcopal Church will give one of their delightful socials at the residence of Mrs. Russell, on Dayton street.

The Board of County Commissioners at their meeting yesterday did little but receive reports and petitions from viewers of roads, &c.

Rev. Bain, of Chicago, who has preached for the past two Sabbaths at the United Presbyterian Church, will conduct the services again next Sabbath.

The Republican Senatorial Convention meets at Middletown to-morrow. The candidates are Captain Dan. Howell and Stephen Curtis, of Butler, and Mr. Ellis, of Warren County.

The old "Cox Cow," famous for her ability to open any gate, however securely fastened, was yesterday sold to a Jew cattle buyer, and will be taken from the city tomorrow. This will be glad news to the denizens of the southern part of the city.

Last evening a little girl named Sophy Doyle, whose father lives near the flower garden of John Lower, in the Second Ward, was badly injured by attempting to jump off a carriage on which she had climbed to get a ride. Her right leg caught between the spokes of one of the wheels and was crushed just above the knee. She was carried home and Dr. Kirkpatrick called, who found upon examination a compound fracture of the right limb and the bones protruding through the flesh. The Doctor dressed the wound and did all he could to relieve the little sufferer.

SPORTING NEWS.
Horse Shooting.
National Associated Press to the Star.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 3.—At the State rifle match yesterday, at Bayview, the team of the First Rifle Company of Warsaw won the first prize by a score of 189. The team of B Company, Seventy-fourth Regiment, won the second prize by a score of 169.

Horse-ball.
The following games were played yesterday:

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 3.
Innings..... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Cincinnati..... 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 3
St. Louis..... 4 0 0 1 0 0 2 1 0
St. Louis called—Off Pick 12, off Burkard 22. Bats called—Off Burkard 5, off Pick 6. Struck out—Cincinnati 3, Rochester 1. Left on base—Cincinnati 4, Rochester 8. Umpire—Mr. Shea.

Time of game—Two hours and twenty minutes.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 3.
Innings..... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Hartford..... 0 0 2 1 2 0 0 0 3
Cincinnati..... 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 1
Umpire—Mr. Kenney, of the Atlantic Club. Time of game—Two hours.

First base by error—Hartford 4, Chicago 1. Runs scored—Hartford 1, Chicago 4.

BOSTON, Sept. 3.
Innings..... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Boston..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
St. Louis..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1
Umpire—Mr. Shea.

Time of game—Two hours and fifteen minutes.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 3.
Innings..... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Allegheny..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
Louisville..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1
Umpire—Mr. Shea.

Time of game—Two hours and fifteen minutes.

AURORA, IND., Sept. 3.—The following is the score between the Hoosiers and the Louisville of Cincinnati: Hoosiers 1, Louisville 3.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 3.—The game between the Indianapolis and Stars ended in the fifth inning. Score 4 to 2, in the Stars' favor. The Indianapolis left the ground on account of dissatisfaction with the umpire.

CINCINNATI GAMES.
The Cincinnati have engaged Mitchell and Miller, of the Springfield Club, to play in to-morrow's game with the Louisville on the home ground.

THE OLD WORLD.

National Associated Press to the Star.

SUCCESSFUL RUSSIAN ADVANCE.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—A special correspondent with the headquarters of the Grand Duke Nicholas at Poreidin, telegraphs under date of Monday, via Bucharest, Tuesday, September 3, 10 o'clock at night, as follows:

The long-exploited attack on the forces under Osman Pasha was made this morning, according to a prearranged plan, by which the assault takes place simultaneously along the whole Russian line, reaching from near the mouth of the Volga almost to the foot of the Caucasus, south of Loxatz. The attack, as made, was successful. It was only intended by the Grand Duke that the advance, once begun, should not suffer any check.

The fighting began this morning about 10 o'clock. The advance had begun at 6 o'clock, but there was considerable delay, owing to the irregularities of the Turkish troops. The Turkish outposts were encountered almost immediately by the Russian skirmish line, but they fell back without any hesitation, doubtless seeing that the advance was made in force.

When the Turkish outposts had fallen back upon their main picket line the firing became brisk. The skirmish line of the Russian army was strengthened and engaged the enemy until the main body began to arrive. The regiments as they came up were at once formed in order of battle. The artillery fire along the entire line of the Russian advance was again steady and destructive. The Russian gunners, of their rapid movement, admirably covered the advance of their infantry, and the latter pushed forward in close contact with the enemy.

The Turks are fighting stubbornly, but almost entirely on the defensive. The fighting that ensued, as soon as the entire movement had been fairly unmasked by the Russians, was of the most terrific character, both on the part of the Turks and their assailants. Almost every strategic point along the whole line of operations was the scene of desperate charges by the Russians. In nearly every instance, when the Russians reached the Turkish positions, they succeeded in carrying them, despite the broken ranks and scattered condition of the great army occupied by the movement of the Russian forces.

The Turkish positions, though in the main well chosen and on hilly ground, were stormed with an impetuosity that swept the enemy before them, though in many instances at a heavy loss in killed and wounded. The defense of the Turks was determined and desperate, but they were unable to withstand the onslaught of their opponents, and were compelled to retire suddenly from position after position. Before noon the Turks had been driven into their last line of entrenchments. Meanwhile, having been informed by spies of the existence of a by-road, a sort of a spur of the main thoroughfare, which led to the town of Loxatz, and that the town would certainly be taken before dark, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

The battle still continues. And from the artillery firing which I hear off in the distance to the northward, a staff officer, high in rank, said to me a moment later, "If that be true we shall enter Plevna to-morrow morning. I can only say that everything seems to indicate such a result."

an examination showed two ghastly wounds penetrating the skull, one between the left ear and eye, and the other in the forehead. The wounds had evidently been made by the pole of the hatchet. The brains were oozing from them in large quantities.

The husband escaped, and was last seen on his way toward Ludlow.

At a late hour the woman was still alive.

Coroner was there waiting for her death, and impounded the following jury: Geo. N. Rose, N. P. Carter, Dr. M. Greer, Ben. Becker, C. H. Bramble and G. J. Sieze.

LATER.
The woman died at 5 o'clock this morning.

Coroner Averick held an inquest this morning, the jury returning the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find that the deceased, Edith Watson, came to her death by wounds inflicted by a hatchet in the hands of her husband, Philip Watson."

"G. H. Bramble, foreman, Wm. Watson, J. N. Rose, E. Lott, G. Jacob Ziegler, John Weaver."

Since writing the above we understand that the man has been captured in Florence, Ky.

Marriage Licenses.
The following marriage licenses were issued since our last report:

John Deinger and Mary A. Weber. Peter Reuter and Rosa A. Siffer. Martin Waits and Katie Rosenhofer. Jos. Hogan and Mary Valentine. Chas. Schuele and Clara Raese. H. Reckmann and Annie Jackson.

Wm. S. Catter and Annie F. Smith. Wm. Schuler and Bertha Als. H. D. Bramble and Luella M. Bennett. M. J. Kye and Annie E. Smith. Anthony K. Van and Bertha Ziegler. John Clinton and Jenny Bauman. Chas. Sely and Anna Schuler. S. S. Sparks and Laura S. Evans. Thos. J. Galvan and Anna Moran.

John Hall and Clara E. Dille. Geo. Lawrence and Eliza Plow. Fred. Dreihls and Kate Gensheimer. A. B. Wilkinson and Alice A. Howard. John Deinger and Mary A. Weber. Peter Reuter and Rosa A. Siffer. Martin Waits and Katie Rosenhofer. Jos. Hogan and Mary Valentine.

Death Record.
The following deaths have been placed on record since our last report:

Emma Williams, 35 yrs., city. Phoebe H. Stoddard, 13 mos., city. John C. Stevens, 11 mos., city. John B. Einfeldt, 44 yrs., city. Catherine Korte, 18 mos., city. Henry A. Sacker, 13 yrs., city. Katie Pauley, 24 yrs., city. Jacob Vogt, 64 yrs., Germany. Bridget Donahue, 55 yrs., Ireland. Henrietta Prigge, 19 yrs., city. Wm. H. Christman, 19 mos